Cortical Visual Impairment or CVI affects children and adults alike. I created "Animals For Children with CVI: Red on White, Yellow on White, Black on White" specifically for children with CVI. Every child should have the opportunity to learn and explore life within their own sphere of development. While children's book is not an assessment tool for CVI, it's a way for parents to hopefully have more positive and meaningful interactions with their child. If your child sees better on a black background look for the book "Animals For Children with CVI: Red on Black, Yellow on Black, White on Black." The use of this book is not exclusive to children with a CVI or other visual impairments, children with normal vision can find the book enjoyable as well. Board Book for Children 6 months to 5 Years. Show your child how to fall in love with reading at a very early age! Baby's First Book: Animals High-Contrast, Black & White Book For Newborns This charming high-contrast, black and white book is an introduction to animals, and includes bold basic animal images to help stimulate your child's developing mind. Designed for babies 6 weeks to 6 months, the bold black-and-white high-contrast images will engage your baby and provide a calming, natural learning experience. Babies respond to the strong contrast between black and white, which helps to stimulate development within your baby's eyes. With all the activity going on around a newborn baby it is easy for his/her brain to become completely overwhelmed. High contrast shapes and patterns provide your baby with something simple and engaging to focus on, which in turn will allow his/her mind to rest. High-contrast shapes are usually very basic and may even appear to be a little boring to adults, but they are designed to hold your baby's attention. Researchers have shown that newborns actually prefer to look at black and white images, rather than bright colors....(that you will see in most "general" newborn baby books). Contrasting colors are most appealing to babies. Black and white provide the greatest contrast. Black and white are the easiest for your baby to perceive. Fixation Your baby can see clearly at birth and can fixate and maintain his/her gaze intently on an object. Allowing your child to repeatedly look at these contrasting black and white images will help increase your baby's attention span. There have been studies where many parents have reported that their newborn's attention span increased from 10 seconds to 90 seconds after only one week of looking at black and white image books for just a few minutes a day. Tracking Your baby will track appealing objects with his/her eyes. The more appealing the object, the more intense and prolonged the tracking. When you use high-contrast images your child will be able to track with more ease because of his/her increased interest. Tracking helps your baby to learn where an object is and how it differs from its background. Scanning When your baby scans, he/she learns how to see and compare entire objects. This ability eventually helps him/her to distinguish all the objects in the environment. The large images in this book will help to calm and also captivate your baby's interest while at the same time provide the building blocks for his/her developing mind. Buy Now! Scroll to the top of the page and click the buy button. The award-winning, best-selling Baby Touch series is back with a sleek and playful design. In the first few years of life, babies' vision is still developing. They see first of all in black and white, and in bright, high contrast colours such as yellow and red. Designed to develop babies' eyesight, this book of large, friendly faces will stimulate vision from birth. With clearly-defined simple images that even the youngest children will respond to, it provides a multi-sensory experience that will help focus a baby's attention and concentration. Wave to mummy, daddy, the animals, the sun, the flower... and who's that in the mirror? Schaller, Robert W. Shumaker, Sigourney Weaver, Patricia Chapple Wright A book from bestselling author-illustrator Anita Bijsterbosch to stimulate baby's visual development! A pleasure to share and talk about with a baby, or for older babies to look at for themselves. Ferocious Animals will remind you of who and what we are beneath all the cool digital interfaces: animals, burning with ferocity for a mouthful of life's flesh. The thirteen stories in Luke Johnson's debut collection do not shy away from life's brutalities. Nor do they overlook those moments of genuine intimacy, humour and revelation that imbue the tragic with purpose and with pathos. Set in regional Australia in an era before mobile phones and the internet, these stories will remind you of who and what we are beneath all the cool digital interfaces: animals, burning with ferocity for a mouthful of life's flesh. 'These stories are compelling and memorable, every single one of them.' —Debra Adelaide 'A set of stories that...never lose sight of what matters most: the complexity of human nature.'

—Anthony Macris 'I love the emotional heart at the centre of Ferocious Animals. It is a book of great energy and tenderness.'

—Tony Birch 'Reading Ferocious Animals made me want to walk out into the street and cry on the shoulders of strangers.'

—Luke Carman 'At turns hilarious and heartbreaking, Johnson wields the narrative with the steadiest of hands.'

—Julia Prendergast 'Johnson lucidly, deftly, offers a few narrative breadcrumbs, until there is nothing to do but to finish each story at all costs and then to wish that this book would not end.'

—Roanna Gonsalves Sue Coe's advocacy of animal rights is unmatched in its eloquence, forcefulness, and lasting impact. She does so with a combination of extraordinary images and few words. In her unstinting insistence on tolerance and love, Coe brings us to a life-affirming philosophy that values compassion over greed, community over self, and life over capital. In 115 black-and-white woodcut illustrations for The Animals' Vegan Manifesto, Sue Coe unleashes an outraged cry for action that takes its rightful place alongside the other great manifestoes of history. As a prize-winning artist, she bears witness to unspeakable crimes, and has long advocated that we human beings must take more responsibility for ourselves, our fellow species, and the planet. Her illustrations, in the tradition of Goya, Kollwitz, and Grosz, will be familiar to many; her paintings, drawings and prints have been exhibited in galleries and museum around the world, including New York's Museum of Modern Art. Black panthers are big cats with black fur. They are also called black leopards and black jaguars. They are lively mammals and very powerful predators. This big cat is a smart and sneaky animal. Because of its dark fur, it is easy for the panther to hunt its food at night. This is why they are also known as "the ghost of the forest." The animal-rights organization PETA asked "Are Animals the New Slaves?" in a controversial 2005 fundraising campaign; that same year, after the Humane Society rescued pets in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina while black residents were neglected, some declared that white America cares more about pets than black people. These are but two recent examples of a centuries-long history in which black life has been pitted against animal life. Does comparing human and animal suffering trivialize black pain, or might the intersections of racialization and animalization shed light on interlinked forms of oppression? In Afro-Dog, B é n é dicte Boisseron investigates the relationship between race and the animal in the history and culture of the Americas and the black Atlantic, exposing a hegemonic system that compulsively links and opposes blackness and animality to measure the value of life. She analyzes the association between black civil disobedience and canine repression, a history that spans the era of slavery through the use of police dogs against protesters during the civil rights movement of the 1960s to today in places like Ferguson, Missouri. She also traces the lineage of blackness and the animal in Caribbean literature and struggles over minorities' right to pet ownership alongside nuanced readings of Derrida and other French theorists. Drawing on recent debates on black lives and animal welfare, Afro-Dog reframes the fast-growing interest in human – animal relationships by positioning blackness as a focus of animal inquiry, opening new possibilities for animal studies and black studies to think side by side.
