Demand Revelation and the Provision of Public Goods Nov 25 2022 The demand revelation process has been called a new and superior process for making social choices and holds some promise of creating an intellectual revolution in economics and politics. It relies on a so-called “Clarke tax” or pivot mechanism to ensure that individuals will adequately consider the social cost of their influence on social outcomes, thereby ensuring truthful revelation of preferences and overcoming the “free rider” problem of public goods provisioning. Demand Revelation and the Provision of Public Goods outlines Clarke’s approach to use demand revelation in the creation of demand revealing markets accompanied by the improved management of social entitlements to public goods and services. Based on these refinements, he shows ways to achieve improved government performance in areas of taxation, spending and government regulatory management. In this revised edition of his original 1980 book, Clarke reviews other recent related work, notably Martin Bailey's Constitution for a Future Country, which describes in detail how these advances in an improved political economy can be achieved.

The Economics of Emergency Food Aid Provision Mar 17 2022 This short book reviews the provision of food bank and other emergency food aid provision with a specific focus on the UK, whilst drawing lessons from North America, Brazil and Europe. The authors look at the historical positioning of food aid and the growth of the food aid sector in the UK following the period of austerity 2007-2012, before addressing the causes of food insecurity and concluding that food banks are a symptom of austerity and government inaction which fail to tackle the underlying causes of food poverty. The research is timely, and considers a range of disciplines and practices. This book will appeal to researchers, policy makers and practitioners food economics, welfare economics, public policy, public health, food studies, nutrition, and the wider social sciences.

Corruption and the Provision of Health Care and Education Services Dec 02 2020

Government intervention to correct market failures is often accompanied by government failures and corruption. This is no more evident than in social sectors that are characterized by significant market failures and government intervention. However, the impact of corruption on the public provision of social services has not been analyzed. This paper reviews the relevant theoretical models and users' perceptions of corruption in the public provision of social services. It then provides evidence that reducing corruption can result in significant social gains as measured by decreases in child and infant mortality rates, percent of low-birthweight babies, and primary school dropout rates.

God Is the Provision of All Our Needs Nov 01 2020 This powerful book shares profound scriptural insights on the power of God and how He was the provision of all our needs. Gods provision is not about us, it is about Him and His work. God wants His children to be blessed and healed, with every need met, live a life full of more abundantly and have prosperity with a purpose. God promise to provide all our needs if He has not provided it, then we dont need it. We should realize that our true need is God Himself. God is on a mission of restoration and remodeling our mind. It is my sincere desire that this book will serve for inspiration and confirmation to those who read them. Let us live our lives today as we will live in eternity, focusing on God as our Light, our Creator, our Redeemer, our Provision and Provider. God gave us His Son, Spirit, Love, Gift and Free will and provides us with the divine principle for living a victorious life. He gave us all the basic tools which are His words and the truths contained in the Bible have the supernatural ability to change and transform us to be the person that God wants you to become in Him. This book will help you develop and apply biblical principles to our lives and also shares insights that will help readers adjust to the many challenges and changes that life brings. The most important thing in achieving your road to victory is your will power, attitude, dedication, passion, commitment, and refusal to surrender. Cultivate positive thinking for the right reason to enhance the quality of your life and the lives of others. We can frame our world; change our circumstances through the power of Gods word. The key to overcoming challenges and problems and have victory is to see them from God proper perspective. This book will guide us into discovering Gods plan by renewing our mind, demonstrating accountability, self-discipline, and good conduct. What you are doing today always effects where you will be tomorrow, therefore we should pay attention to our action today! Our character, behavior and attitude shape us to know God and allow our children to learn more about God which help them to develop spiritual knowledge that help to enquire wisdom, discipline and instruction necessary for godly living. The right habits create the right destiny. The best way to predict the future is to create it. Your life has a divine purpose and destiny. The quality of your works is the reflections of your character. Faith in God opens the doors to favor. Where there is no vision, the people perish. This book will challenge your mind to embrace changes and responsibility and the greatness God has put within you. May Gods grace and mercy be poured out on anyone that reads this book? May the Holy Spirit inspire us? All these blessings shall come upon you and overtake you, because you obey the voice of the Lord your God (Deuteronomy 28:2). I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me. My God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus (Philippians 4:13, 19).

Some Problems in the Provision of Professional Education for College Teachers Feb 16 2022

Institutional Options for the Provision of Infrastructure Sep 23 2022 This paper explains why tough public sector reform and a sound macroeconomy are essential to sustained growth. It provides a strategy to help countries evaluate how well their governments' policies work. Decisionmakers will learn ways to build an evaluations program that can make governments more accountable and improve their performance. Some options could include making central banks independent, eliminating earmarked funds, and balancing the national budget. The author suggests which government offices should oversee and develop evaluation policies to get the best results, and explains why evaluation results must be linked with all budget decisions. He describes the political and economic environment that allows the evaluation process to develop freely. Also discussed is the role that the World Bank and other institutions should play in supporting evaluation programs. The study examines how sound evaluation can lead to more consistent international policies and better international governance.

The Provision of Non-formal Education for Human Rights in Zimbabwe Sep 30 2020

Generally there remains a wide disparity between proclaimed ideals, declared intentions and reality in the field of human rights. Contrary to expectations, the attainment of independence by African countries has been characterised by wholesale denial of basic human rights and fundamental freedoms. The author, from the Centre for Applied Social Science in Namibia, provides an insight into human rights activities of organisations in Zimbabwe; and places the need for human rights education in a legal, political, social and economic context. She argues that the emphasis has been on civil and political rights, as opposed to economic, social and cultural rights and what the law ought to be. She concludes that human rights education programmes in Zimbabwe do not reflect the principles to which the Government publicly adheres.

Developing Norms for the Provision of Biological Laboratories in Low-Resource Contexts Jun 27 2020 On June 27-28, 2018, the U.S. National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine (the National Academies) convened an international workshop in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, on developing norms for the provision of laboratories in low-resource contexts. The U.S. Department of State's Biosecurity Engagement Program requested that the National Academies organize this workshop to engage an international group of organizations that provide funding for construction, upgrades, and maintenance of biological laboratories in countries without the means to build such labs themselves.

Twenty-one people from 19 organizations participated. The intent was to advance the conversation about the identification and application of guiding principles and common norms for use by these organizations in their grants, partnerships, and aid. This publication summarizes the presentations and discussions from the workshop.

The Contract Clause Sep 11 2021 Few provisions of the American Constitution have had such a tumultuous history as the contract clause. Prompted by efforts in a number of states to interfere with debtor-creditor relationships after the Revolution, the clause—Article I, Section 10—reads that no state shall “pass any. . . Law impairing the Obligation of Contracts.” Honoring contractual commitments, in the framers' view, would serve the public interest to encourage commerce and economic growth. How the contract clause has fared, as chronicled in this book by James W. Ely, Jr., tells us a great deal about the shifting concerns and assumptions of Americans. Its history provides a window on matters central to American constitutional history, including the protection of economic rights, the growth of judicial review, and the role of federalism. Under the leadership of Chief Justice John Marshall, the Supreme Court construed the provision expansively, and it rapidly became the primary vehicle for federal judicial review of state legislation before the adoption of the Fourteenth Amendment. Indeed, the contract clause was one of the most litigated provisions of the Constitution throughout the nineteenth century, and its history reflects the impact of wars, economic distress, and political currents on reading the Constitution. Ely shows how, over time, the courts carved out several malleable exceptions to the constitutional protection of contracts—most notably the notion of an inalienable police power—thus weakening the contract clause and enhancing state regulatory authority. His study documents the near-fatal blow dealt to the provision by New Deal constitutionalism, when the perceived need for governmental intervention in the economy superseded the economic rights of individuals. Though the 1970s saw a modest revival of interest in the contract clause, the criteria for invoking it remain uncertain. And yet, as state and local governments try to trim the benefits of public sector employees, the provision has once again figured prominently in litigation. In this book, James Ely gives us a timely, analytical lens for understanding these contemporary challenges, as well as the critical historical significance of the contract clause.

Water Law Apr 18 2022 This work deals with the law dealing with water resource management and the provision of water services in South Africa. The law governing water in South Africa was always regarded as a specialised field, the domain of a small group of lawyers. However, the political and social reform during the last decade of the 20th century, the water-related problems experienced and the prominence given to fundamental human rights and environment-related matters have significantly increased the need for this knowledge by others. South Africa is in the process of developing and implementing a new framework governing water resource management and the provision of water services. This complex and dynamic framework aims to manage absolute water scarcity with significant participation by all interested and affected persons. The work reflects the framework governing water (as far as it is necessary to understand the law) and the legal position as at 30 November 2004.
